SELECTING YOUR FINISH COLOR

KraftMaid offers an exquisite palette of gorgeous furniture finishes and glazes, which add warmth to your cabinetry and home. Whether you love light-colored finishes or rich, dark tones, KraftMaid finishes bring out the innate beauty of your cabinetry. In addition to your personal style, keep the following in mind when selecting a cabinetry finish.

Color Variation Of Finishes

All KraftMaid finishes are hand-crafted; therefore, each door will be unique. In addition, the natural characteristics of wood create color variation that often shows through even when a finish is applied. Door styles with all solid wood components show less variation than those with a veneer center panel. To learn more about finishes and wood types, visit kraftmaid.com.
KraftMaid finish techniques heighten the beauty of wood’s organic characteristics and showcase natural beauty. Each finish technique creates a unique furniture look, while the 14-step fine furniture process and hands-on craftsmanship give each piece of cabinetry its own distinctive style. To complete the finish process, the DuraKraft™ topcoat is applied, oven-cured and hand-sanded between coats for a beautiful, long-lasting finish. KraftMaid finish techniques are explained on the following pages. Use this information to select the finish technique that’s right for you.

REQUEST A FINISH SAMPLE

Choosing the perfect finish combination for your KraftMaid cabinetry is easier than ever. Photography is a great representation of the completed look, but viewing an actual sample will allow you to see how your favorite finish color will really look in your home. Visit kraftmaid.com to order a 4" by 3.25" finish color sample that shows how a finish appears on a wood type. Or you can order a 15" by 15" door sample illustrating a finish on a wood type in a specific door style. For more information about finish color expectations, visit KraftMaid online.
STAINED FINISHES

For a natural look, a stain color is applied, then hand-rubbed into the wood for rich, consistent color coverage.

- Stains enhance the inherent beauty of each wood type. Natural characteristics such as wood grain, mineral streaks and knots become more prominent, which creates lighter or darker effects in the color.
- The color of a stain can vary on the various parts of the same door. End grain and veneer absorb more stain than other wood components of the door, resulting in a darker color.
- Chocolate and Muslin stains include flyspeck highlights. This technique involves a random spattering of a complementary finish color, which adds depth and dimension to the finish.

Availability varies on Maple, Oak, Cherry, Birch and Hickory
HIGHLIGHTED FINISHES

A base stain color is hand-rubbed into the wood for maximum absorption. Next, a highlight glaze is hand-applied to the recesses in the door and drawer fronts, adding depth in color without altering the appearance of the base stain.

- This hand-detailed technique creates an artisan look for your space.
- Highlighted finishes are hand-applied, and no two doors look exactly alike.
- Highlights enhance the details of the door without changing or affecting the base color.

Availability varies on Maple, Oak, Cherry, Birch and Hickory

GLAZED FINISHES

A base stain is applied, then a flood coat of glaze is applied and hand-wiped, leaving behind soft tones in the corners and recesses of the door. Next, a highlight glaze is brushed into the corners and recesses by hand to emphasize the subtle variations in color.

- Glazing is a finish process that involves two hand-detailed techniques, so no two doors look exactly alike.
- The initial flood coat of glaze softens the original base stain color. The highlight glaze increases visual depth and interest in the corners and recesses.
- A veneer center panel absorbs more of the glaze, resulting in a slightly darker color than on the solid wood components of the door frame.

Availability varies on Maple, Oak, Cherry and Birch
ANTIQUE-GLAZED FINISHES

For an heirloom look, unfinished doors and drawer fronts are randomly distressed and over-sanded. A base stain is then applied, followed by a flood coat of glaze, softening the initial base stain. Once the glaze is wiped off, a hand-brushed highlight glaze is applied to the recesses of the door and drawer fronts.

- This technique builds on the glazed finish process and gives your cabinetry the character of well-loved antique furniture.
- Flyspeck highlights, a random spattering of a complementary finish color, add depth and dimension to the finish.
- The combination of techniques used here creates an old-world feel of hand craftsmanship, and no two doors look exactly alike.

BURNISHED FINISHES

This technique creates the warm, traditional look of fine furniture. Unfinished doors and drawer fronts are randomly distressed then over-sanded. Next, a darkening stain is artistically applied to the corners and raised areas, creating a burnished effect. A base stain is then applied and carefully hand-wiped.

- The very complex process of over-sanding, random distressing and applying burnishing stain produces one-of-a-kind results, and no two doors are exactly alike.
- Burnished Ginger and Burnished Chocolate include flyspeck highlights, which are produced by a random spattering of a complementary finish color, adding depth and dimension.
- Burnished finishes are only available on solid, raised-panel door styles.

Availability varies on Maple, Cherry, Birch and Hickory²

1. Antique Oatmeal with Ebony Glaze receives additional color enhancement on over-sanded areas.
2. The unique qualities of Burnished Finishes cannot be shown on a small sample. To ensure your satisfaction with this finish, we strongly recommend ordering a door sample prior to placing your cabinetry order.
PAINTED FINISHES

Several coats of heavily pigmented semi-opaque stain saturate the wood for rich, beautiful color while allowing some of the natural beauty of the grain to remain visible. KraftMaid uses solid wood as the base material for painted finishes, whereas some other cabinetry manufacturers use engineered wood.

- The characteristics of the wood are less noticeable with painted finishes than with stained finishes.
- Since wood naturally expands and contracts, you may see hairline cracks in the finish surface at the joints. Joint lines are normal and do not affect the strength of the door’s construction.
- Painted finishes are only available on maple due to the more uniform appearance and smooth, clean characteristics of this wood.

The labor-intensive vintage finish process gives the appearance of heirloom cabinetry that has been well loved and used. The unfinished door and drawer fronts are uniquely distressed and over-sanded. Next, several coats of heavily pigmented stain saturate the wood for a rich, beautiful color that allows the perfect hint of wood grain to show through. The corners and edges of the door and drawer fronts are over-sanded once again, revealing the natural beauty of the cherry wood.

- Multiple steps, including random distressing and over-sanding, create an aged appearance where no two doors look exactly alike.
- As wood naturally expands and contracts, hairline cracks in the joints may occur. Joint lines are normal and do not affect the strength of the door’s construction.

Available in White or Cream, thermofoil cabinet doors feature a flawless, silky-smooth surface. Thermofoil material is applied to medium-density fiberboard (MDF) using an intense heat and pressure-bonding process to ensure durability.

- Made of laminate, thermofoil finish provides a uniform look from door to door and is easy to clean.
- Thermofoil reacts to heat. To protect a thermofoil finish and maintain its warranty, a KraftMaid heat shield is required on cabinetry located next to an oven.
- Prolonged exposure to tobacco smoke will discolor thermofoil finishes, and this side effect is not covered under warranty.

Choosing Your Door Style

Cabinet doors are the most visible part of your cabinetry and key factors in defining your style and bringing your personality to life. With this in mind, KraftMaid offers many unique door styles for you to choose, including square, arched, slab, raised and recessed panel options. When choosing your door style, you’ll also want to consider the overlay of the door. Overlays affect how much of the cabinet frame shows and can change the appearance of your space from traditional to contemporary. You’ll find an in-depth explanation of overlays below.

Full Overlay
A full overlay door style means that there is very little cabinet frame showing around each door and drawer front, creating a living space with a modern, seamless appearance.

1" Overlay
Door and drawer fronts featuring a 1" overlay leave 1" of the cabinet’s face frame exposed between the doors, resulting in a clean appearance.

1/2" Overlay
Cabinetry designed with ½" overlay door and drawer fronts leaves 2" of the cabinet frame exposed between the doors, creating a more traditional look.
Maple is a strong wood that is primarily off-white in its raw state. However, maple sometimes contains light hues of yellow-brown and pink as well as light tan or reddish-tinged streaks that darken with stain. Typically straight-grained, maple can be wavy or even curly. Hard maple offers more uniformity than other wood types, making it ideal for living spaces that feature a clean, streamlined appearance.

Oak has a prominent, open grain ranging in color from white to yellow to reddish brown. Occasionally streaked with green, yellow or black mineral deposits, red oak has a strong grain that often varies from closely knit to a distinctive, sweeping arch pattern. The grain patterns of quartersawn, red oak are more subtle, resulting in a cleaner look than traditional oak.

Cherry is a rich, multi-colored hardwood, often used in fine furniture. In its raw state, cherry has pinkish-brown hues with occasional shades of white, green, pink or gray. Small gum pockets, streaks, pin knots and figures are common wood characteristics. Natural or light stains accent the color variations in cherry, while very dark stains soften its complexity. All cherry wood naturally darkens or “mellows” with age.

Hickory is a strong, open-grained wood that is known for its flowing grain pattern and dramatic variation in color. Hickory often contains random pecks, burls and mineral streaks. GLASS DOORS

You can add personality and visual interest to your space with glass doors. Whether metal or wood doors fit your style, KraftMaid offers an extensive selection of glass inserts. Clear, beveled or mullion designs enable you to show off your treasures and collectibles, whereas smoky, frosted, silk and layered styles obscure cabinet contents while creating an intriguing focal point. Whichever glass doors you choose, be sure to add interior cabinet lighting for an even greater impact. Lighting solutions can be found on pages 68-69.
